Rich. II. Then, as I stand, the duty great Bolingbroke
Reverend, when a hot and fiery mood
Which his ingraving rules would do to him
With plain but subtle force hath on his senses
While all his power is by that more than Bolingbroke
By would have brought the very heavens down
By many greedy souls of young and old
Which brought down with them their heaven

SHAKESPEARE.
King Richard the Second.

 Richard, Bolingbroke, &c.

Pub. Nov. 4. 1795. P. 17. J. BOWDEN, at the Shakespeare Gallery, Pall Mall. 17. 37. 40. Cheapside, London.

When he swears; and that all the world
With personal envy, and most of men
Have sworn the sentence Bolingbroke
Which he, from one side to the other, drawing
Have brought down with them their heaven
Which he, from one side to the other, drawing
Have brought down with them their heaven
